A Tall Tale From the Deep Sea

Hempstead county's deep sea fishermen returned home from the Gulf coast Sunday — and the next time you are inclined to blame tall tales on newspaper exaggeration just remember that in this case it is Leo Robins who says that 10 men caught 457 fish. Naturally the ones who didn't go along on the trip are at the mercy of those who did, when it comes to finding out the facts.

However, the circumstantial evidence seems to bear Leo out—that they really made a big haul.

Charley Wilson, of Columbus, put it cryptically in a postcard, like this: "We caught four barrels of fish."

I hear several stories about the expedition. You recall that the 10 local men left Hope Sunday, July 28, for Bayou La Batre, Ala. There they went deep-sea fishing on a chartered schooner, Silver King No. 1, owned by Captain John Graham.

The first day out the Hope men ran into a party from Helena, Ark. Side-bets went up as to which party would catch the most fish the first day. Hope caught 272; Helena 254.

These were the edible kind, Spanish Mackerel, king mackerel, and bluefish. Later, the boys switched to big shark and tarpon, for the sheer fun of landing powerful fighters. They caught 12 shark and 1 tarpon.

Frank Johnson landed a 40-pound tarpon, and is having it mounted. Leo Robins brought in a 75-pound shark.

Dr. Don Smith hooked a 65-pound shark in the belly, and, having no leverage on the fish, was carried in his boat at high speed for a mile and a half before the big fighter gave out. In the boat with Dr. Smith on the wild ride were Lloyd Spencer and the boatman.

The Hope boys say, however, that in landing their big fish they did it honestly. A banker in the Helena crowd hooked a big tarpon, and, fearing it would get away, hoisted his boat for the beach, got the fish in shallow water and thus trapped him before he could break loose—amid the jeers of the Hope crowd, still angling in deep water where a fish could fight with no holds barred.

Aerial Offensives Are Reported by Britain and Italy

Three German Planes Downed Off English Channel

BRITAIN ALERT

Italians Claim 14 British Planes Downed Sunday

By the Associated Press

Spectacular aerial offensives—possibly preliminaries to important new phases in the European war—were reported Monday by both Britain and Italy.

Charging in within range of the German anti-aircraft batteries on the continental coast of the English Channel, the British air ministry said that a squadron of nine spitfires caught a patrol of German Messerschmitts on their home grounds and shot down two. A third was reported downed on the English side of the channel.

With Britain on the alert against the threat of a Nazi Blitzkrieg because of opportune tides and weather, this challenge may mean either that the British are trying to nip the Nazi plans in the bud or are taking the offensive to prevent Germany from organizing one.

British Planes Downed

ROME —(P)—Some of Britain's most important strategic centers in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, Kenya and the Aden zones, including newly-built airfields, were wrecked over the weekend by Italian air bombardment, Stefani, the official Italian news agency, reported Monday.

The high command reported that 14 British planes were shot down in Africa Sunday and claiming 10 which resulted when the British attacked to bomb Libyan troops on march near the Egyptian frontier.

Japs Not Satisfied

LONDON —(P)—A Japanese Embassy spokesman declared Monday that the embassy unsatisfactory Britain's explanation of the arrest of two prominent Japanese business men in London.

The Ambassador Shigemitsu meanwhile was busy preparing a third protest for submission to the British foreign office.

30 Killed in India

CALCUTTA —(P)—Thirty Indians were killed and seventy were injured Monday when a Doon-Allahabad train wrecked about 75 miles from Calcutta. Authorities said that they suspected sabotage.

To Sign Agreement

SOFIA —(P)—Quarters close to the Bulgarian government said Monday they expected an agreement to be signed Saturday between Bulgaria and Rumania returning southern Dobruja to this country after many years of Rumanian rule.

Preliminary negotiations in line with Hitler's order that both countries settle their long standing quarrel was completed Monday, sources said.

City Streets May Receive Aid From U. S. State Funds

Public Roads Administration Offers Opinion

OUTLINES VIEWS

Says City Streets Considered as Highway Work

WASHINGTON —(P)—An opinion of control of the public roads administration, outlined its views in a letter to Representative Ellis.

Curtis pointed out that Arkansas now receives its allotment of Federal-aid road funds without matching under a special provision exempting states from matching requirements if 90 per cent of their gasoline and other special taxes are used exclusively for road debt retirement and for the operation and maintenance of state and federal-aid roads.

If the amount of taxes diverted to cities did not bring the figure below 90 per cent, Arkansas would still receive federal-aid money and there would be no diversion under the act because the city street work is considered highway work, Curtis said.

Votes Uncertain on Training Bill

Arkansas Congress Delegation Still Undecided

WASHINGTON —(P)—Arkansas members of congress are worried as the time nears for a vote on compulsory military training legislation. Off the record, they agree that a majority of the delegation will support compulsory selection of some nature, but for the present, they say it is best to wait for the final draft of the bill to be considered.

Senator Hattie W. Caraway, who has two sons in the armed forces, says she hasn't made up her mind, but feels the legislation may be necessary. If it is, she'll vote for it.

Senator John E. Miller isn't sure the legislation is necessary, he said, and added he would "let my actions be governed by the facts, including the nature of the emergency, whatever it may prove to be."

One representative, who asked that his name not be used, explained the position of most of the group as follows: "Some of the folks back home might think it is a reflection on the patriotism of the American youth to talk of compulsory training. Actually, it is not at all. So many safeguards, as to jobs and salaries, can be written into compulsory legislation, that the plan has every advantage over the voluntary system. I think, if the bill that finally emerges from committee isn't too drastic, most of our delegation will support it."

However, Representative Fajio Cravens isn't convinced "our volunteer system has broken down." Before accepting compulsory legislation, he said, he'd have to be shown that enlistment quotas aren't being met and that the army and navy have adequate equipment and housing facilities to provide for the training of every man selected.

Clyde Ellis said that "only when I am shown a sufficient military force can not be had with proper inducements will I vote for conscription, and then only for a bill that would provide substantial pay for those drafted for training."

W. F. Norrell said he was giving the matter "prayerful study."

"If I support it," he said, "the legislation must be moderate in form and provide safeguards for the jobs of those drafted for training, as well as liberal exemptions."

E. C. Gathings is studying the records of the committee hearings, as well as my mail from the people at home," before committing himself, he said.

I want to set the final form of the proposed legislation," was the comment of Wilbur Mills.

Wade Kitchens is giving the matter "serious study," but isn't talking. "Proper safeguards for the security of the men proposed to be enrolled and the necessity for their selection must be shown," said Dave Terry.

Louisiana-Nevada Seeking Towns

Asks Right to Furnish Gas to S. W. Arkansas Points

LITTLE ROCK —(P)—The State Utilities Commission opened a hearing Monday on a petition from the Louisiana-Nevada Transit company for authority to furnish natural gas to Taylor, Fulton, Saratoga, Bradley and McNab, all southwest Arkansas communities.

The state supreme court recently upheld the right of the company to do business in Arkansas in competition with the Arkansas-Louisiana Gas company.

Would Give U. S. Ships to Britain

Pershing Urges Dispatch 50 Destroyers at Once

WASHINGTON —(P)—Gen. John J. Pershing urged Sunday night that the United States send at least 50 destroyers to aid Great Britain, asserting that "we shall be failing in our duty to America if we do not do it."

The World War commander of the American Expeditionary Forces, now in his 80th year, said in a broadcast address that "by sending help to the British, we can still hope with confidence to keep the war on the other side of the Atlantic ocean where the enemies of liberty, if possible, should be defeated." Urging immediate action, he declared:

"I say to you solemnly that tomorrow may be forever too late to keep war from the Americas. Today may be the last time when by measures short of war we can still prevent war."

When he had completed his address, Pershing walked from his room down a corridor and was met by Secretary of State and Mrs. Hull who also are residents of the hotel.

Hull grasped Pershing's hand and warmly congratulated him. Pershing complimented Hull on accomplishments of the Havana conference of foreign ministers.

Lindbergh Urges U. S. Co-operation

Must Be Prepared to Treat With Whoever Wins War

CHICAGO —(P)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh said Sunday that in the future the United States "may have to deal with a Europe dominated by Germany" and advocated "co-operation" with Europe "in our relationship with the other peoples of the earth."

He told a mass meeting in Soldier Field, sponsored by the "Citizens Keep America Out of War Committee," that:

"There are still interests in this country and abroad who will do their utmost to draw us into the war. Against these interests we must be continuously on guard. But American opinion is now definitely and overwhelmingly against our involvement."

In his broadcast address, his third radio talk in connection with the European situation and its effect on this country, Lindbergh emphasized:

"While I advocate the non-interference of America in the internal affairs of Europe, believe it is of the utmost importance for us to co-operate with Europe in our relationships with the other peoples of the earth."

"It is only by co-operation that we can maintain the supremacy of our Western civilization and the right of our commerce to proceed unmolested throughout the world. Neither they nor we are strong enough to police the earth against the opposition of the other."

"In the past we have dealt with a Europe dominated by England and France. In the future we may have to deal with a Europe dominated by Germany. But whether England or

At Mr. Couch's request a picture postcard showing Hope's largest watermelon, 195 pounds, was sent to Mr. Haskin with instructions to correct this error.

We Learn About Our Aliens

For the first time, the United States is going to get together some really complete information about its aliens.

The registration which will begin Aug. 27 and close Dec. 26 is a tremendous undertaking. Perhaps 3,500,000 residents, non-citizens, will be required to list with the government basic data about themselves, including their fingerprints.

Time was when a proceeding of this kind would have been regarded as smacking too much of European restriction to fit into the American picture. Scarcely today. Left to itself, the United States would never have adopted such a plan. But the impact of European tension on the world has brought about adoption of this registry almost without opposition.

Several things ought to be kept clearly in mind as the day approaches when all aliens must appear at one of 7,500 registration centers to leave a record of themselves and their activities.

First, this is no witch-hunt. The definite assurance of Director Earl G. Harrison has been given that all loyal aliens will be protected from unfair attacks or discrimination. The fact that a person must register is nothing against him.

Second, there is no charge or fee in connection with the registration. Already unscrupulous persons have appeared, ready for a suitable fee to "help" aliens through the registration. No help is required except that which will be freely given through postoffices. The registration must not be allowed to open up a profitable source of graft by preying on ignorance.

Director Harrison is not expecting any widespread disclosures of criminal activities or Fifth Column work. He is convinced that the vast majority of aliens are peaceful and law-abiding.

Among the questions asked (with penalty for willful falsification) is one covering all membership or activities in clubs, organizations, and societies. Another covers connection with political activities of foreign governments.

Persecution and injustice could easily follow abuse of such information, and even of the mere fact of registration itself.

On the old Anglo-Saxon principle that all are innocent until proved guilty, all should guard against jumping to conclusions. The government has instituted the registration. The government is quite capable of taking any necessary action upon it in an orderly and legal manner.

Blevins-Byrd

The following announcement from the "Arkansas Democrat" will be of interest to the many friends of the groom in the city.

The marriage of Miss Neva Blevins to George Canlin Byrd Jr., of Hope, was solemnized July 31, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Forest Blevins, Conway, by the Rev. H. H. Blevins, West Helena, uncle of the bride. An altar was improvised by white baskets of gladioli and roses against a background of fern on white trellises. Preceding the ceremony Miss Inogene Minton played "Traumerai" and Schubert's "Serenade" for entrance of the bride party. Miss Helen Byrd, Pine Bluff, sister of the bridegroom, lighted the candles. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a dress of white marquisette over white satin. The veil was caught by small roses and her flowers were white asters, tube-roses and Sweetheart roses. Mrs. Robert Whitaker, Monticello, was her sister's only attendant. She wore a dress of peach marquisette, styled on princess lines, and her flowers were purple asters.

SERIAL STORY

SUMMER THEATER

BY MILDRED WILLIAMS

COPYRIGHT, 1940, NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY, Jean told Molly that the picture Reynolds came for the play, asks Johnny to get it back for her. Molly interrupts a farewell, angrily accuses Jean of running out on a job, then turns on Johnny, when he asks if she's afraid she won't get to work the scene.

CHAPTER VII

"HAS Andre Masters seen Jean?" Molly asked again, with a curious, panic-stricken glance.

"What in the world has Andre Masters got to do with this?" Johnny wanted to know. He took in her blank, blue stare, the nervousness of her slim fingers. "Jean did say he was being nice to you. . . . Is that it?"

"Good heavens, after that scene I just interrupted—you kissing Jean—that's a fine note to hand me!" She spoke mechanically as if something were still bothering her. Or was she merely evading?

"I told you, Jean was only saying goodbye. We always kiss, somehow. . . ."

"Listen, Molly, don't get off the point. Is Andre Masters taking up the few spare minutes you used to give me?" He was surprised at the rage which rose within him.

"I told you I haven't any time for romance," she snapped. "I like you and I like him. If we've got to strain that remark—I like you most. Oh, why can't you quit harping?"

"You like me. Sounds as if I were a recreation center. What am I to you, anyway? Summer-time diversion?"

"Oh, stop being so intense!"

SHE changed the subject abruptly. "You never did tell me whether Jean had seen Andre. He wants the cameo, and I don't want him to know yet that it belongs to her."

It was Johnny's turn to wheel on her suddenly. "What are you talking about? I'm in charge of that cameo. Jean said she lent it to you for the play. When the play is over, I'm to get it back and send it to her."

"How perfectly wonderful," said Molly, plans working behind her eyes.

"What do you mean, 'wonderful'?" I'm about that brooch the way the Louvre is about the Mona Lisa. Anyway, it's bad luck for you."

"Bad luck? How fascinating. Tell me about it."

Johnny shrugged. "Just an old story. It was fashioned especially for Jean's great-grandmother. Her fiancé was bringing it to her from Italy. He was lost. He handed it over to the winner, and the man's mistress killed him that night. Reynolds got the pin back. Bad luck number one.

"But it's not unlucky for the Reynolds. It fosters love, understanding and all the rest of that muck. But on all the occasions when it's ever got out of their hands, something terrible has happened to the one who has worn it."

"Andre will love that," she said. Johnny frowned. "What have you got on your mind, apprentice? Tell me or I won't let you wear the cameo even in the play."

Molly laughed. "It's nothing to get upset about. Remember what I told you about a wedge to get in on Broadway? Well, Andre is my wedge. He's interested in me now because he likes the cameo. By the time I give the cameo back, he'll be interested in me because I'm potentially a great actress. And it's all wonderful, because there's no hurry about getting it back, now that you're responsible."

Johnny shook his head. "You're wrong there, so you might as well come clean with Andre. When the play ends that cameo goes back to Miss Jean Reynolds with my compliments."

Molly came over to him, held up her pretty mouth. He kissed her.

"Could we have another picnic tonight before rehearsal? I've missed you, Johnny, more than I let myself believe."

Johnny's blood was singing in his veins. He said, "Yes, darling." And then he looked toward the door to see Jean Reynolds standing there, a look of desperate resignation in her face. Before he could step away from Molly, Jean had masked that look with one of defiance.

"My turn to beg your pardons," she said, "but Johnny's such a Casanova this summer, I never know when I might interrupt a little scene of this sort. I saw Mr. Earl."

Molly stopped smoothing her hair, and smiled at Jean sweetly. "It doesn't matter. I'm sorry I was so rude. I'd just come from rehearsal and was pretty fagged out. Of course, some of us can get the stuff back."

Jean stared at her, incredulously. "Mr. Earl didn't seem to think so. He blew up. He had quite a lot to say about apprentices. Once a play is over, no one seems to know who's responsible for last week's props. That's why I was elected. And here I am, puis, in your hair again."

BUT Jean didn't get in their way. Johnny did not see her way. Johnny did not see her way.

Grayson's SCOREBOARD

Driver Hardest Club for Most Golfers Cause the tee shot is the most spectacular and therefore the most sought-after.

Lighthouse Harry Cooper is convincing that an analysis of most players' games would show many errors committed with the driver than any other club.

There are few players in the low 80s and high 70s who don't push hook, top or otherwise mangle four tee shots out of 18. For a man to be off on four mashie-niblick swings in a round is rare.

They don't pay off on the drive, but Cooper, the stylist, stresses that neither do they write checks for 10-foot putts which drop for an eight after a 450-yard expedition through the rough.

During tournaments of national importance you frequently hear the remark that the stars devote practice periods to the putting green because that is where championships are won and lost.

"That is nonsense," says Cooper, the great runner-up.

"Most topnotchers spend considerable time on practice greens at tournaments because no two courses have greens exactly alike, and it is highly essential to get the feel of strange greens."

"These same players have spent days perfecting long wooden shots on practice fairways at home."

"Since a drive is hit the same way on one course as on another, driving practice at the site of the tournament isn't so necessary."

Ninety-nine of every 100 golfers, if given their choice of having only one perfect shot on a hole, would prefer the drive. And their judgment would be sound, according to Cooper.

There's no other club with which you can cover as much distance.

"It is well to be able to make delicate recoveries from traps and stroke-saving run-ups from off the green," asserts the machine-like Texas Englishman, "but the fact remains that on a par 4, 450-yard hole this distance must be covered before a putt can be holed, and I know of no more damaging factor than a drive sliced or hooked off the fairway."

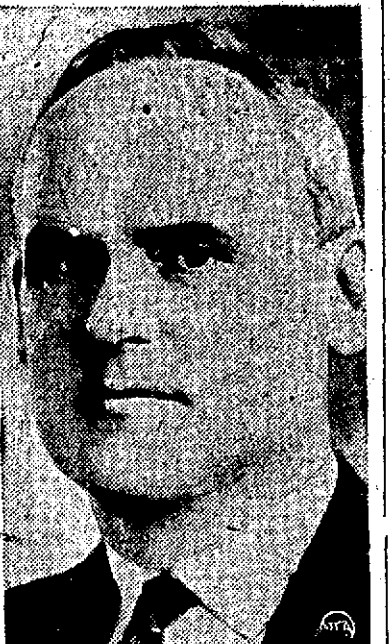

The farther away from the hole, the less chance a player has of hitting the green, so why, asks Cooper, delude one's self into ignoring poor tee shots upon the false assumption that the mashie and putter will make up the lost ground?

Golf courses simply are not laid out that way.

Knoxville Takes a Doubleheader Sunday 3-2, 7-4

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—The Knoxville Smokies won a doubleheader from the Little Rock Travelers, 3 to 2 and 7 to 4, here Sunday afternoon. Al Baker, who relieved Paul Smith in the third inning of the opener was credited with the win. Baker and LeFebvre allowed seven hits each.

Each team used three hurlers in the second. Smith, who went in in the third to relieve Koneff, was the winner while Prendergast was the loser.

Smith retired the Travelers with ease in the first two frames, while the Smokies got runners on in each of the first two innings, but failed to produce any runs.

Smith lost his control in the third and gave way to Baker after two runs had scored. Rensla led off with a walk and Irwin singled to center, Rensla stopping at third. LeFebvre walked to load the base. Sieling rapped a long single to left, scoring Rensla and Irwin. Baker took over and Dwyer forced Sieling at second. Schalk hit into a double play.

Capital Barber Shop Comments

Reveal Argument Heard in Shop Conversations

By JACK STINNETT
WASHINGTON — Capital barber

Barber: Hello, Senator. You look like a Democratic New Deal Senator. Dammit, man! I am not. First, it's Hitler, then it's politics; now it's the weather. I doubt if any of us will live to the first frost. If you put a hot towel on my head, I'll have you jailed for sabotage.

Republican Anti-New Deal Representative (from adjoining chair): I guess if the Father of Our Country could take it, Senator, we ought to be able to. You've been making too many of those pro-third term speeches. Say, that one you made yesterday about there not really being any third term tradition—you don't believe that, do you?

Sen.: Certainly I do. Traditions are not made with words. You have to have some positive acts establishing it. The third term idea never has been any one in this country and it won't.

Rep.: Well, we'll see about that. When that man Roosevelt... Sen.: Now look here, young man, if you want to argue with me, assume at least the dignity befitting a representative of the people and leave out the name-calling.

Rep.: All right, when President Roosevelt becomes Mr. Roosevelt again he'll realize that the people of this country have no use for a man who tries to ride rough shod over the ideal of democracy.

Sen.: That's a piffle. If the people should vote in November to have a new tenant at 1500 Pennsylvania avenue (which they certainly won't, young man) it will be because they have been convinced that someone else can do the job better than it is being done. The third term bugaboo will have nothing whatever to do with it.

Rep.: Why, Senator, how can a man of your political astuteness brush off so lightly the principal issue of this campaign? Now, up in my district—

Sen.: I don't know anything about your district, young man, but I'll just illustrate what I mean, using your district as an example. You are a Republican; therefore your district is Republican... but didn't it vote for Roosevelt in 1932 and 1936?

Certainly. And that's all there is to it. There's nothing the people of this country like better than booting out a so-called tradition. Other things being equal, they would rather kick over the traces of tradition any day than run down the same old groove.

Rep.: Well, Senator, maybe I don't agree with you about the motivation, but I'll take your word for it that the people like a change and still bet my bucks that New Deal music has gone stale in the ears of American voters. The people want a new tune.

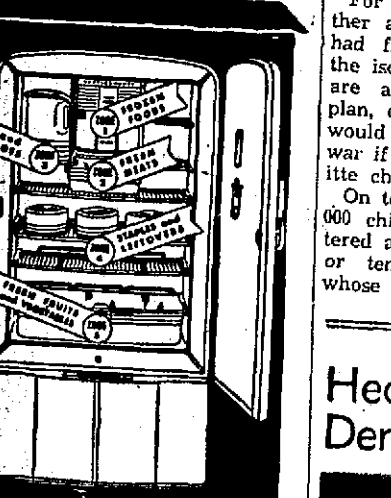

Sen.: It all depends on the tune. The national anthem has been kicking around quite a while but it still can bring a crowd to its feet.

Rep.: You could "God Bless America" until the Democrats took it over. Well, good-by, Senator.

Sen.: Boy, if that towel is hot, I'll have you shot at dawn... Say! I believe that last remark was a dirty one... Skip the shampoo, let me out of here. I've got to go write another speech!

NEA Washington Correspondent

Getting Ships to Carry Child Refugees From England Big Obstacle

WASHINGTON — In spite of everything being done to make possible the mass evacuation to the United States of British children, it is extremely unlikely that more than a very small fraction of the youngsters in England can be brought over here. The obstacles in the way—both material and otherwise—are formidable.

What can be done? is being done. The House foreign affairs committee has given a favorable report to a bill to modify the neutrality law so as to let U. S. flag "mercy ships" call at British ports to get the children. The U. S. Committee for the Care of European Children, with the co-operation of three government departments, is preparing to see that every child who can get over here may be placed in a good home. A great deal of the red tape connected with visas and passports has been untied, and the old quota restrictions no longer stand in the way.

Nevertheless, "the problem hasn't been solved yet by a long shot."

Not Enough Ships Available

Foremost is the problem of shipping. The U. S. Maritime Commission is ready to put its three biggest passenger vessels—the America, Washington, and Manhattan—into service. Between them, these three ships could carry about 6000 children per round trip. British shipping to carry about 2500 more is also available.

But there are already 200,000 children registered as in need of transportation. Bringing them over at the rate of 8500 every three weeks would hardly be scratching the surface.

One suggestion has been that Canadian troop ships be used to bring the children over on their return voyages. Objection voiced here is that the Germans might well consider such ships fair targets for torpedoes, even if they did agree to the general principle of letting the mercy ships come through unscathed.

For that matter, no one knows whether any kind of agreement can be had from the Germans; lacking it, the isolationists in House and Senate are almost certain to oppose the plan, on the theory that the country would be too likely to get into the war if an American-flag liner full of little children should be sunk.

On top of all this, even the 200,000 children who are already registered are but a fraction of the eight or ten million British youngsters whose parents might want them sent over to safety.

What Will Mr. Hitler Say?

Despite the obstacles, the work of preparing to receive the children is being pushed. Both State and Justice Departments are co-operating. A committee, headed by Marshall Field, is handling the whole complicated job of finding homes and financial sponsors for the children, and is under-taking to meet the youngsters as they arrive and get them to their destinations.

Working with the committee, also, is the Children's Bureau of the Labor Department. Every home chosen to receive a child must get the bureau's okay.

Next step is up to congress. Congress is ready to help; but it would like to know just what Mr. Hitler is going to have to say about the whole scheme, if possible, before committing itself.

A birthday party was held at the home of Mrs. W. T. Wood on July 17 in honor of her 69th birthday. Those present were:

Alex Rodden and family, of Carnegie, Okla.; Archie Rodden and family of Pontiac, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. Fred McElroy of St. Louis, Mo.; C. C. Rodden, Mock Rodden O. W. Rodden, and families of Sutton; Mrs. T. J. Rodden of Sutton, and many other relatives and friends.

Sweet potatoes are a member of the morning glory family.

It has caused conflict in Europe since European history began.

Describing his travels through European countries from 1936 to 1939, Lindbergh recalled a Chinese proverb saying that "when the rich become too rich, and the poor too poor, something happens."

Working with the committee, also, is the Children's Bureau of the Labor Department. Every home chosen to receive a child must get the bureau's okay.

Fantastic Tales Heard at Capital

Says Roosevelt Would Not Serve All 3rd Term

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — Out of almost every major event that occurs in or affects Washington comes a plethora of stories. Some are fantastic, some are trial balloons released by the power-that-be to test public reactions, and some are merely ridiculous. Still others are a clear-minded analysis of a situation.

Wading through these stories daily, I try to pass along only those that have some basis in reason, interest or logic. Occasionally I run across one I can not tab, but which seems worth passing along. Of such is the following. It is interesting and reasonable, but whether it is somebody's pipe dream or has its roots in truth I haven't the slightest idea.

It is that President Roosevelt, if he is re-elected, has no intention of serving out a third term.

Some People Say—

This story, which has been kicked around for some time, is causing many an argument over coffee and crumpets.

Those who contend for it argue this way: The President was absolutely sincere in his statement that he did not wish to run again. Months ago, he told not only intimates but Republican Col. Frank Knox, who now is in his Cabinet, that he doubted if he could stand the strain of another four years in the White House.

Starting with the court fight, the attempted party purges of 1938, the neutrality act, and the thousands of problems arising out of the war in Europe and the new defense measures, these persons say, the President has been through a lot at the tail end of his second term, not to mention the battles of the first. Look at what is ahead in the next few months. Is it any wonder he is tired and feels the need of rest and retirement?

And one thing more, they argue: Why did Roosevelt select Henry A. Wallace as his 1940 running mate? Admitted that Wallace, as Secretary of Agriculture and head of the Agricultural Adjustment administration, controls personnel and funds that affect millions of voters, wouldn't F. D. R., as the prime force behind it all, have received all of those votes anyway? It doesn't detract from Wallace's ability as an economist, farm specialist and administrator to admit that he is no great shakes as a political campaigner, when one seemed desperately needed on the ticket this year. Then, why Wallace? Because, more than any other vice-presidential possibility, he could be depended upon to carry on, without disruption, the New Deal reforms and New Deal ideologies.

No Use Asking

Therefore, the upholders of this theory conclude, when the world crisis is over, when the ship is again on even keel, Roosevelt, if he is elected, will relinquish the helm and take the long rest he so much needs.

But it wouldn't do any good to ask him. Just as announcement would have weakened his position both in the capital and abroad, so would any such hint from him weaken the power and strength to the Presidency when the country needs it most.

Well, that's the story anyway.

It is a mystery how, with so little difference in composition, two drugs can have such utterly different effects upon the human system as do quinine and strychnine.

HARRISON IN HOLLYWOOD

By PAUL HARRISON, NEA Service Correspondent

Let's Go Elephant-Hunting With Bwana Paul in the Jungles of the Hollywoods

HOLLYWOOD — Armed with a pocket machete and a pound of lump sugar, your correspondent has ventured into the well-tracked jungles of Baldwin Lake, in the Santa Anita country. A Paramount expedition is filming "Moon Over Burma" there, and the eucalyptus and palm groves harbor flies, mosquitoes, chiggers, and elephants. I fed all of them.

Ordinarily the ten elephants would be with a circus, but the studio signed them first. Movie-trained elephants are scarce, and getting scarcer. Anna May, veteran of hundreds of pictures, died last year—appropriately enough for a Hollywood celebrity, of stomach ulcers. Sully and Queenie worked and were killed in a fire that swept Goobel's animal farm. Replacing those two are Duchess and her double, Pinto. No glamour girls, they're about 50 and 65. Glamour hasn't anything to do with their role, anyway, which is carrying Dorothy Lamour, Bob Preston, and Preston Foster through a teak forest.

Talking with Earl, their trainer, while doling out sugar to a line of working elephants for movies. They can't be directed, as can dogs, by hand signals. And they'll obey only the voice of a trainer. They pay no attention to what any star tells 'em to do," said Earl, a little smugly.

Animals Insist on Their Rights

Earl has had some trouble convincing Director Louis King that Duchess, carrying a howl and the three principals, can't be persuaded to go through an intricate routine, including stopping at an exact spot and lying down, without shouted commands or the nudging of a bullhook.

"Some directors are sweet with animals," the trainer said. "Dick Thorpe, who made the last two Tarzans, knows just what they can or can't do. Another guy, I remember, got sore because a lion had to be fed at exactly the same time every afternoon and wouldn't work afterward. Say, if that cat hadn't been fed on time, he'd have dined on us!"

Another thing few directors understand is that elephants won't stand perfectly quiet. Earl's going crazy trying to keep his pals from spilling scenes by tossing leaves and dust at the files, or by snorting. Discipline is especially hard to maintain on a movie set because SPCA agents, always present when animals are working, forbid using a stick on a stubborn or mischievous elephant who needs a whollop. This trainer would mistreat Duchess, Pinto, and the rest about as willing as he'd kick Dorothy Lamour.

Beasts Anxious to Please

Main trouble about training elephants for pictures is that they're too anxious to please. They can't understand—any more than many a human observer can understand—why a stunt has to be done over and over again for five or six rehearsals and a dozen takes. Rather logically, they finally decide that they try something else. It might be, for example, walked on the set and lay down about 15 times, and did it perfectly. On the 16th time, she tried standing on her head. Preston Foster sailed out of the howdah for a beautiful lone-and-a-half.

This one is the best elephant in Hollywood now, and the only one who will be trusted to carry Paramount's stars. Like many a star, she won't work overtime. When 6 o'clock comes or maybe 10 minutes one way or the other—she takes Earl's wrist and heads for the barn.

Juror Was Insane, But Verdict Wasn't

TRENTON, N. J.—(AP)—If a jury verdict is sensible although a juror is insane, there is no cause for mistrial, Circuit Court Judge William A. Smith believes.

Six days after a $10,000 verdict was returned against an insurance company, the judge said, a male juror was found "acting like a wild man" and was placed in a hospital.

"This juror may have been crazy," Judge Smith declared, "but we cannot say that of this verdict."

Back to Nature

CANTON, O.—(AP)—Three thieves entered James Black's restaurant. Armed with four guns and an Indian club, Black waited for them to emerge then used only a flying tackle and his fists to capture them.

SMOKERS: SAVE AGAINST THE COST OF THE STATE CIGARETTE TAX

Smokers who live in communities where certain state cigarette taxes are in effect can save the cost of the tax—and, in some instances, more—through smoking Camels. (See panel at left.) When you are a Camel smoker, you get this unique economy—and all the extra enjoyment of cooler, milder smoking—the fragrance and delicate taste of finer, more costly tobaccos.

NANCY HARKNESS LOVE "soloed" at 16, won a transport license at 18, was flying with the best before Vassar gave her up to aviation. Today, she's one of the ranking women in the game. More than a pilot: Nancy Love tests planes, sells them—has even helped build planes.

Yes, she's a girl with the "extras." She likes the "extras" in her smoking, too. Camel's extra mildness, extra coolness, extra flavor, and extra smoking are aces with her—and with millions of other smokers.

You see, Camel's costlier tobaccos are matchlessly blended into a cigarette that is slower-burning. That means freedom from the harshness and irritating qualities of excess heat. Instead of hot, flat-tasting smoke, Camels give a full flavor and fragrance that hold their appeal to the last puff... to the last extra puff, for Camels, being slower-burning, give more puffs per pack (see panel at left). So turn to the slower-burning cigarette of costlier tobaccos and get those extras your smoke-money can buy!
